

UDL in 15 Minutes Blog Table Transcript

LOUI: Hello, and welcome to UDL in 15 minutes where educators discuss their experiences with UDL. I'm Loui Lord Nelson, UDL author and leader.

We've just celebrated the Labor Day holiday here in the United States which means the majority of our K-12 schools and post-secondary schools are back in session. It's that fast-paced time of the year when we need all of the quick-glance guides we can get!

A few episodes back, I created a quick-glance table of past UDL in 15 Minute podcasts. The response was overwhelming, so for this week's podcast I created a table to help you choose the associated blogs that will interest you. The table has a brief description of each blog along with a link so you can get there quickly. Each blog always links back to the associated podcast in case you want a quick refresher. The blogs are short and succinct (think 2 pages or less in length), are extensions of the podcast discussions, and are intended to extend your learning about UDL a little bit more. You can find the table at www.theUDLapproach.com/media, Episode 24. And remember, we know that designing with UDL is transferable across all learning environments and we can all be inspired by educators at all levels.

And finally, if you have a story to share about UDL implementation for UDL in 15 Minutes, you can contact me through www.theUDLapproach.com. And thanks to everyone for your work in revolutionizing education through UDL and making it our goal to develop expert learners.